Jurisdictional Rebuttals, Claim of Right Instruments, and Enforcement Notices

1. Jurisdictional Rebuttals

- This Ecclesiastical Trust operates solely under divine and spiritual law. No statutory court, government agency, or commercial entity has lawful jurisdiction over its persons, property, or instruments.
- All assumptions of consent to statutory governance are rebutted. This includes any presumed citizenship, corporate contract, or statutory obligation imposed without fully informed and voluntary consent.
- By the invocation of UCC 1-308, all rights are reserved and any compelled association with foreign jurisdictions is expressly denied.
- This rebuttal applies to all presumed enforcement via licensing, registration, taxation, and regulatory frameworks not explicitly agreed upon by the Trustee.

2. Claim of Right Instruments

- I, a living man/woman, operating in my private ecclesiastical capacity, claim my natural, spiritual, and lawful right to self-governance.
- I claim the right to establish, maintain, and operate this Ecclesiastical Trust without interference or regulation from external bodies.
- I claim the right to own, control, and manage property, both real and personal, under the authority of divine jurisdiction.
- I claim the right to deny consent to any statute, code, or regulation that conflicts with divine law and spiritual integrity.
- This Claim of Right is made under penalty of perjury, without prejudice, and in full honor and good faith.

3. Enforcement Notices

- Any individual, agency, or institution attempting to impose foreign jurisdiction over this Ecclesiastical Trust will be served this notice as evidence of rebuttal.
- Continued trespass upon the trust, its members, or assets will be considered a willful violation of natural and spiritual law, triggering legal remedy under ecclesiastical enforcement.
- This notice serves as a lawful declaration of our autonomous jurisdiction and must be honored by all parties under international and domestic law.
- All public officials are hereby informed that interference with this trust constitutes breach of fiduciary duty and spiritual trespass.
- Failure to cease and desist unauthorized jurisdictional claims may result in legal action, spiritual accountability, and public notice of violation.

Issued under the Ecclesiastical Authority of the Private Trust of Jonathan Daniel Clements.

All rights reserved. Without prejudice. UCC 1-308.
